The orthography of the Worcester Dictionary is that used by most, if not all, authors of distinction in this country and England, and conforms to the general usage of ordinary writers and speakers.

Mr. BRUFF supported the amendment of Mr. Plants, because the bill cuts down the general school tax, which will cut down the period of schools for each year, unless made up by a local tax.

Mr. STIERS deprecated the idea of reducing the school levy at this time. The very fact that we are in war is one of the best reasons for keeping up the fund and the schools would require less.

D. L. WOOD,
The committee are fully satisfied that the Quarter-Master General made no contracts not above noted, and that the implied censure of the House was not only unmerited but unjust.

In the matter of contracts made by the Combada no portunity to make an examination in tall of them, but as far as their examination all of them, but as far as their examination has extended, we find nothing that, in our diagnost, would attach to Commissary General Runyon's connexion therewith any improper or dishonorable action or motive. I left the perfecting of the details and writing the contract to General I. D. Cox. who This agreement, made this 17th day of April, writing the contract to General J. D. Mr. PLANTS said this arrangement of the long as the present rebellion and disturbance of levy was an old acquaintance that be had often the country shall continue. We made arrangements of one company at the Goodale House at $1 25 ber day; two companies at the United States at 75 cents per day; one company at the New England at 75 cents per day; one company at the Buckeye at $1 00. We reported our arrangement to the crowd in the Governor's office, and the Governor approved of it.

The Governor then directed Mr. Buttles and myself to look up suitable parties that would contract to subsist the volunteers. We went to Mr. Butler and made the proposition to him be asked time to consult his friends. After such consultation he offered to subsist the men at the rate of 50 cents per day—which proposition was submitted by them to the Governor, who directed Mr. Cox to draw up a contract at those rates, which he did. I signed it as Commissary General, and the Governor immediately endors ed on it his approval.

When the contract was made, I did not know what the cost per day would be to subsist the men on army rations, but by subsequent estimates find that it would be about 17 cents per day. The Governor thought it would not do to bring the volunteers immediately to army rations. Contracts were made under the emerations.
